Be Young. Be Inclusive. Be Active.

Encouraging youth participation, active citizenship and dialogue with policy-makers through mentoring and non-formal learning

Concept

Young Europeans are best-placed to see the change in our societies and are the ones that should determine its pace. But change-making, active citizenship, leadership and youth participation are not to be improvised: civil society organisations can help untap the potential of young people as real change-makers. In the framework of an Erasmus+ European Youth Together project, AEGEE, OBESSU and other educational partners are training young people to take action locally while enabling them to connect their local activities to the EU level. Through the European Change Makers Academy, it is time to bring their ideas to decision-makers and other relevant stakeholders in the education and training sectors. This event will join the Change-makers with decision-makers (MEPs and local decision-makers) as well as other stakeholders from the youth & education field.
